A far simpler rule would be that no federal employee an any level can accept free admission to any conference or meeting (or free anything else).

Such conferences may be quite useful and the government should simply pay for all expenses.

I admit that I did not read read the entire description on your site, but such a rule is very simple for any individual to follow.

I have known Air Force Officers who have followed this rule on their own, it was so simple to do and nobody could be offended when the rule was known.
