	(1.11) Per the Peace Corps ethics officials, as of March 22, 2024, the Peace Corps no longer has a full-time ethics official, as this individual was detailed to the ethics office for six months. However, on February 5, 2024, the DAEO designated the ethics office’s Policy and Program Analyst to be a Deputy Ethics Officer. Therefore, the ethics office now has three part-time ethics officials. In addition to these three ethics officials, the ethics office has a Paralegal Specialist who assists the Ethics Team part-time.

	COMMENTS
	(3.12-3.13) The majority of non-PAS filings at the Peace Corps were reviewed more than two months after filing. According to the DAEO, the late reviews occurred because of the nature of the staffing of the Peace Corps’ Ethics Team. The DAEO is a part-time ethics official and has multiple duties and responsibilities as an Associate General Counsel for the agency. In late 2023, the Ethics Team brought on an Ethics Detailee to clear its backlog of reports. The DAEO added the primary day-to-day program administrator, also the new Deputy Ethics Officer, as a reviewer to expedite the reviews of future reports received. This individual recently completed the OGE’s Accelerated Curriculum in Ethics (ACE) Program and already screens initial filings. OGE emphasizes the importance of timely review and certification of financial disclosure reports to quickly identify and address potential financial conflicts of interests arising from an agency official’s financial holdings or obligations. Timely identification and resolution of apparent conflicts serve to mitigate statutory and regulatory risks for agencies when officials hold such potentially conflicting financial interests. (3.14-3.17) The Peace Corps did not have any PAS officials who were required to file annual or termination reports during the period covered by the inspection.
