NAME Allison Costa	DESCRIPTION With the success stories around the country, many new developers are keen to get their projects off the ground and existing projects are looking at expanding. However, there are also many challenges developers have overcome in order to minimize the risks of failure and maximize revenue. This key event will bring together US Biogas leaders to examine how to develop commercially successful biogas projects and address the latest technological advances in production. Delegates will learn from best practice case studies from biogas producers, utilities, biogas users and gain a clear understanding of the current federal policy framework from government representatives as well as investment criteria, project start up requirements, plant optimization and upgrading biogas for transport sector or injection into national gas grids. NAME Alexandra Sullivan	DESCRIPTION The 7x24 Exchange conference is designed to bring together key experts and data center owners and operators. The conference program works to open dialogue on strategies for best practices in data center operation and maintenance. This includes case studies, technologies, and management practices, based on real world experts. I am attending this conference to speak before an audience of data center owners, operators and managers. I will be participating in a panel jointly with the US Department of Energy to provide information on a task force we have organized to collaborate with the IT industry on data center energy efficiency metrics. This is a great opportunity for the government to demonstrate leadership and action with respect to energy efficiency in this industry. This event offers me the opportunity to reach a diverse set of large data center owners and operators including major commercial real estate firms, financial firms, and internet companies. Attendance is important for the ongoing success of ENERGY STAR's data center initiative.
